Unmatched Manager-Artist R/ship

Social Media influencer Pemphero Mphande and artist Keturah are trending over allegation of relationship rumours.

With the artist posting, “my manager” this, “my manager” that, you’d understand why.

And with some pictures showing the manager holding the artist in a “boyfriend manner,” even we are raising our eyebrows.

Well, Pemphero Mphande has confirmed to FYI that... wait for it... he and his ~girlfriend~ artist will come for an exclusive interview on FYI TV Programme live on Times Television on Monday, 19 April ‘21 from 5pm.

Usher Bucks

Usher got the smoke on social media over the week for apparently tipping strippers with fake money, that had his face on it.

TMZ though, the American FYI, reported that that was a misinformed troll at Usher.

They say the issue was raised by one IG user who accused Usher of paying strippers with Usher Bucks. In actual sense, Usher, they say, paid strippers with real money but one of his guys slid the money inside the strip joint, as a joke.

And, the story was twisted and social media's been throwing jokes at Usher since.

NAMADINGO, MADE CEE FRACAS

BY Richard Nkhonjera

Time for the maybe's. Maybe we are all wrong. Maybe Dr. Namadingo is on the wrong side. Maybe the young boy is mentally ill. Maybe Made Cee did not meet contractual standings with NamaArtist management.

Before coming to limelight, teenage upcoming Dancehall artist, Made Cee, approached Patience Namadingo to seek for advice and financial assistance for he was planning to release an album. Instead, Namadingo, through FDH, offered him a scholarship worth K2m and sent Made Cee to Pact Northpark Secondary school to pursue his studies while pursuing his music career.

After signing Made Cee under NamaArtist record label, the CEO, Namadingo announced that FDH will send Made Cee back to school and that he would release his debut album after completing his first term in school.

Months passed but the album was still not released. Commenting on the cause of the delay, NamaArtist management said they wanted the artist to do well in school before the album drops.

Unfortunately, Made Cee miserably failed his first term in school (Position 140 out of 142 students) and now rumours have it that the boy has been expelled after being found smoking chamba with his colleagues in their hostels.

Made Cee has now stormed social media with videos expressing dissatisfaction with his manager. In the clips, he expresses how he has been sidelined by Namadingo who promised to help him through.

The story has sparked a huge debate on social media in the country but Namadingo told Nation Newspaper that Made Cee needs help right now. Regardless, some have been quick to criticize the young artist for being ungrateful.

Elections Bizarre

The Democratic Progressive Party is taking the 2020 Fresh Elections Results to court, asking for nullification.

The party is arguing that the elections were presided over by an incompetent Malawi Electoral Commission team, particularly Linda Kunje and Jean Mathanga.

The two commissioners were recently fired on grounds that judges found them incompetent during the ConCourt ruling last year, despite APM rehiring them as commissioners for the 2020 Fresh Elections.

According to a statement issued by DPP spokesperson, Brown Mpinganjira, the party is using the current government's decision to fire the 2, as grounds to challenge the 2020 Elections in court.

Mkwate Scandal

BY Martin Mpungah

Nyasa Big Bullets have asked South African Championship outfit, Polokwane City, to allow them to use midfielder Mike Mkwate on a 2 month loan.

Bullets sold Mkwate to Polokwane at K18 million in February but the Glad African Championship side failed to register him after missing the deadline day.

Well, a few months later, Bullets want the midfielder for an extra 2 months.
