Piksy takes company to court

Piksy has taken the manufacturers of the ‘Moyo’ bottled water to court for using the trademark.

The artist reportedly registered and trademarked Moyo bottled water in 2017 but issues came to light when “Moyo Madzi Malawi” was introduced by Everest Industries Limited.

But... Piksy has obtained an injunction to stop the other company from manufacturing and distributing the apparent counterfeit of the bottled water also called ‘Moyo.’

Harry and Meghan to join Covid vaccine concert

Prince Harry and Meghan Markle will appear at a star-studded concert aimed at increasing access to Covid vaccines.

The couple was announced as campaign chairs of the Vax Live event, organised by antipoverty group Global Citizen.

US President Joe Biden will also appear at the concert, which is being hosted by pop star Selena Gomez.

“We will all benefit, we will all be safer, when everyone, everywhere has equal access to the vaccine,” Harry and Meghan said.

“We must pursue equitable vaccine distribution and, in that, restore faith in our common humanity. The mission couldn’t be more critical or important.”

The event will be recorded on Sunday at the SoFi Stadium in Los Angeles, and broadcast on 8 May. Vax Live is calling on governments to commit to vaccine equity by donating doses and resources. The campaign is also pushing businesses to “donate dollars for doses”, and for pharmaceutical companies to make vaccines available at not for-profit prices.

In their role as campaign chairs, Harry and Meghan have been encouraging the private sector to make donations to the Covax scheme, which is coled by the World Health Organisation (WHO) and aims to ensure vaccines are shared fairly among all nations, rich and poor.—BBC

Enjoyment weekend

Two events, one city. Two legends, one crowd.

Both Tay Grin and Young Kay are headlining events taking place concurrently in Blantyre this weekend. The former is hosting Summer Jam, an entertainment show taking place at BBQs while Hyphen is performing at Umami Land enjoyment at Scallas Café in Blantyre.

While some think it's odd for both parties to host an entertainment event that will attract a similar audience, others think Blantyre is big enough to hold such huge events on the same day.

Taking to his Twitter page, the Highly Underrated rapper Third Eye challenged the thought.

"It's only in Malawi where people feel a whole City isn't big enough to host two entertainment events," said the rapper.

Meanwhile, Zomba is also going hard this weekend as the city hosts a festival where Eli Njuchi, Phindu Zai, Shammah Vocals, and others are showcasing their skills.

Lilongwe isn't missing out on the fun as well as Beer Land Festival at the Backyard.

Chakwera calls for responsive education

President Lazarus Chakwera has challenged universities to offer responsive education which addresses challenges of the country.

He was speaking at Chancellor College in Zomba where he presided over a graduation ceremony of the University of Malawi (Unima).

Chakwera said the graduation was a culmination of sacrifices from various stakeholders including the country's taxpayers and that graduates must reflect on the standard of education they received and the sacrifices made towards their education.

The 67th Blantyre Derby

BY Martin Mpungah

There is no doubt that the Blantyre derby headlines this weekend's fixture in our domestic football. Mighty Wanderers host Nyasa Big Bullets in a TNM Super League match at Kamuzu Stadium in Blantyre on a Saturday afternoon.

A Blantyre derby without spectators is something that no one could have imagined. The Bullets-Nomads game is known for drawing huge crowds.

Mighty Wanderers will welcome their captain Alfred Manyozo from his suspension and striker Vincent Nyanguru who was attending his sick mother.

"We missed the two players because they are so influential and their presence is a morale booster to us," said Nomads Coach Bob Mpinganjira.

Bullets are second on the standings with 25 points from 12 games while the Nomads are on position 10 with 17 points from their 12 matches.
